Services Marketing C. Bhattacharya, 2009 While most books on marketing and services are readable, very few take the student's viewpoint and set out to answer the question Is it understandable? in the affirmative. This book and its pedagogy has been designed precisely with this in mind: v Design: The book has a consistency of design that is innovative, with aesthetic appeals. v Opening and Closing Cases: Every chapter begins and ends with a case. The cases introduce the primary theme and issues discussed in the chapter and closes with analytical tasks for the students. The cases are original, pertaining to Indian situations, companies and protagonists, helping the Indian students to connect. v Objectives: Every chapter has clear learning expectations, get a glimpse of the chapter context and their respective importance. v End-of-chapter Questions: The questions are many and have been designed carefully to enhance learning for the students. There are elements of research, project work, and academic exercises in them. v Illustrations: The book is generous with pleasing and informative charts, tables and diagrams. v Glossary: The Appendix at the end of the book contains a glossary of services and marketing terminologies. v Marketing models: In addition to the text, the appendix also contains major marketing models mentioned in the text, which are frequently used by the marketers. v How to do cases: The Appendix also contains an useful section for all students a template for case discussion and analysis. There are four parts in the book. Part I takes an overview look at the major differences between services and goods and their characteristics, classifications and different models. It methodically analyses the section on the local, domestic and international conditions and environment factors that have affected services. It also examines the importance of Relationship Marketing in services. Part II examines in-depth the marketing of services. It looks sweepingly and with depth at marketing planning and strategy, service buying behaviour, knowledge management and marketing research in services, and the seven marketing mix variables for services. Part III is about the assessment of service delivery and customer relationship management. Part IV deals exclusively with comprehensive service cases. The cases are in addition to the opening and closing cases. The book lucidly explains the basic concepts of services and marketing and fills a long-standing need of the students for a book on both services and marketing.

Services Marketing in a Changing Environment Thomas M. Bloch, Gregory D. Upah, Valarie A. Zeithaml, 1985

Delivering Quality Service Valarie A. Zeithaml, 2010-05-11 Excellence in customer service is the hallmark of success in service industries and among manufacturers of products that require reliable service. But what exactly is excellent service? It is the ability to deliver what you promise, say the authors, but first you must determine what you can promise. Building on seven years of research on service quality, they construct a model that, by balancing a customer's perceptions of the value of a particular service with the customer's need for that service, provides brilliant theoretical insight into customer expectations and service delivery. For example, Florida Power & Light has developed a sophisticated, computer-based lightening tracking system to anticipate where weather-related service interruptions might occur and strategically position crews at these locations to quicken recovery response time. Offering a service that customers expect to be available at all times and that they will miss only when the lights go out, FPL focuses its energies on matching customer perceptions with potential need. Deluxe Corporation, America's highly successful check printer, regularly exceeds its customers' expectations by shipping nearly 95% of all orders by the day after the orders were received. Deluxe even put U.S. Postal Service stations inside its plants to speed up delivery time. Customer expectations change over time. To anticipate these changes, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company regularly monitors the expectations and perceptions of their customers, using focus group interviews and the authors' 22-item generic SERVQUAL questionnaire, which is customized by adding questions covering specific aspects of service they wish to track. The authors' groundbreaking model, which tracks the five attributes of quality service -- reliability, empathy, assurance, responsiveness, and tangibles -- goes right to the heart of the tendency to overpromise. By comparing customer perceptions with expectations, the model provides marketing managers with a two-part measure of perceived quality that, for the first time, enables them to segment a market into groups with different service expectations.

Services Marketing Valarie A. Zeithaml, Mary Jo Bitner, 2003 SERVICES MARKETING, 3/e, by Zeithaml and Bitner provides a comprehensive review and analysis of services marketing issues, practice, and strategy. Utilizing the GAPS Model of Service Quality as an organizing framework the structure of the text offers part openers that sequentially build the model gap by gap. Each part of the book includes multiple chapters with strategies for understanding and closing the critical gaps. Customer behavior, expectations, and perceptions are discussed early in the text to form the basis for understanding services marketing strategy and the managerial content, in the rest of the text, is framed by the GAPS model. Additionally, the authors continue to refine conceptual frameworks for developing effective services marketing strategy and have incorporated more coverage of the use of technology and business-to-business applications in this edition.

Services Marketing Valarie A. Zeithaml,Bobbi Hiltz,Thomas Mahaffey,Mary Jo Bitner,Dwayne D. Gremler,2007-02 The Canadian economy, like all other advanced economies around the world, is dominated by services. Within these economies, companies increasingly view services as critical to present and future success. Of pivotal importance to current and future managers of these companies is having the tools and knowledge they need. Services Marketing is for students and businesspeople who recognize the vital role services play in our economy and who also recognize the unique challenges that services marketing creates. At the heart of the text is the development of strong customer relationships through quality service. This manifests itself in a unique framework called 'the gaps model for service quality', which was developed by the text's lead author, Valarie Zeithaml. The framework shows that closing the gap between customer expectations and customer perceptions is critical to the delivery of superior service and identifies four key provider gaps that must be closed in order to achieve success in services. In addition, the first Canadian edition of Services Marketing contains relevant examples of Canada's service industry, both integrated into the text itself and in the accompanying videos.
